

I am against any proposals to lessen states rights (specifically Indiana) or reduce protection of existing Telephone Privacy Law. I do not ever need to hear from a solicitor via the telephone. This is a service that I pay for and I should have the right to block access to any and all sales traffic over this medium. The amount of unwanted calls has dropped from several per week (5-10) to maybe one per month. If the federal government wants to make phone service free to everyone, then they have the right to regulate it's use. While I am paying for it, I have the right to limit it's use, and the Indiana law ensures that unwanted sales calls do not interrupt my day.

Thank you for your time.
